Mel Riddile, Ed.D.

Associate Director for High School Services
National Association of Secondary School Principals

In July of 2008, after a distinguished career as the Principal of J.E.B. Stuart High School in Fairfax County Virginia and T.C. Williams High School in Alexandria, Virginia, Dr. Mel Riddile joined the staff of the National Association of Secondary School Principals as the Associate Director for High School Services. Dr. Riddile was the 2006 National High School Principal of the Year and was the 2005 Virginia High School Principal of the Year. His work as a high school principal and as a leader in the field of adolescent literacy has received national and international recognition from National Geographic Magazine, the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, the National Association of Secondary School Principals, and the International Baccalaureate of North America. As a principal of both a Breakthrough High School and a Model High School, Dr. Riddile is a recognized leader in efforts to reinvent America's high schools.
